The Liver is the great depurating the (purifying) organ of the system, and has very appropriately been termed the "housekeeper" of our health. I have progressing finely. The Standing Comalso in making post-morten examina-nittees have all been appointed, and the parties so far as heard from have died of different diseases, that in a large expressed a willingness to "lend a helpproportion of cases, the liver has given expressed a willingness to "lend a help-evidence of having at some time been ing hand." At the mass meeting at liseased. Liver affections are equally prevalent in bests. Every butcher knows that the livers of cattle, sheep, and swine, are ten times as frequently liseased as any other organ. A healthy liver each day secretes about two and a half pounds of bile. When it becomes torpid, congested, or if, from any cause, it be disabled in the performance of its duties, it is evident that the elements of the bile must remain in the ence.
